 day. When they refused, he summoned police.
 The 16 demonstrators were carried from the Wilson office, but police reported there was no violence.
 The Wilson tract has been the scene of demonstrations protesting alleged discrimination in housing sales in Torrance and other area communities. Wilson said the demonstrations had been going on for about a year.

WILSON added he had not previously protested the picketing because it was on public property and continued, "but on private property this (sit-ins) infringes on my rights and others' rights."

Police reported that the suspects refused chicken dinners Sunday evening, but those refusing to eat gave no reason.
 One official at the police department said one of the demonstrators remarked, "We'll be coming from here on out. Next time we'll have 200."

 Torrance because of its long-time service to local customers and the relative smallness of the operation.
 Jim McCandless, who told Councilmen he had been here for 40 years, said removal of his dairy herd at Cream O' Farms Dairy would deprive him of use of his property because the herd lots are landlocked by the Dominguez Channel and by the rest of his production and distribution facilities.

"If I'm deprived of the use of my land, I should be compensated," he said.

In extending the deadline, the Council instructed the Planning Director to accept petitions for exceptions to the deadline.

IN OTHER action, the City Council accepted a bid offered by P. I. Haddan of the Carbohad Co. to conduct a weed abatement program throughout the city during the coming year.

Remembering the complaints which arose when the 1961-62 program included trash removal as well as weed abatement, the Council emphasized several times that Haddan's contract this year calls only for weed removal from private property where owners fail to do so after official notification.

APPROVAL of a five-year contract with the Los Angeles County Library System to provide library services to the city was voted on the recommendation of City Manager Wade Peebles.

"This contract is a landmark," County Librarian William Geller said after the approval had been voted.

Contract for Sea Barriers Receives OK

Hood Corp. of Whittier has been designated contractor for the installation of 12 recharge wells as a part of the west basin sea barrier project to halt intrusion of sea water into fresh water wells, Supervisor Burton W. Chace disclosed Tuesday.

The company filed a $296,692.62 bid with Flood Control District Chief Engineer M. E. Salsbury May 31.

In making the award, the Board of Supervisors instructed Salsbury to prepare a contract for execution by the Hood firm and signature by the Board Chairman after approval by the County Counsel, Chace said.

"Hood currently holds a contract for construction of a 5.9 mile supply pipeline for the barrier which is designed to prevent further salt water intrusion into fresh supplies along the west coastline of the County.

Site of the installation of the 12 recharge wells will be in Prospect Avenue between Spencer Street and Torrance Boulevard in Redondo Beach.

About seven months will be required to complete this phase of the overall project, Chace said.

Plans call for the ultimate creation of a barrier running 11 miles from Playa del Rey to the Palos Verdes Hills, he added.

Rosemary de Camp, wife of Judge John Shidler, has been named by Supervisor Burton W. Chace as a member of the Long Beach World's Fair Advisory Committee of 100.

Mrs. Shidler, 317 Camino de Las Colinas, Hollywood Riviera, was named to the committee post vacated by recent death of Thomas Fox of Santa Monica.

Councilman Ross Sciarotta will show film-strips of Western Europe and discuss current events during a program at the Torrance Adult Center at 7:30 this evening.
 The program is one of a series of monthly offerings tailored for senior citizens. The Adult Center is located at 1318 Cravens Blvd.

Fuchsias are quick color plants for gardens that lack bloom in mid-summer. They are available in hanging baskets, in small pots and in larger containers trained up a center stake for display. They are quite inexpensive, too, when you consider the cost of the container and the time each plant has needed to bring to its peak of perfection.
